Project Title: Making Race Visible in Predominantly White Communities: Perspectives of Teachers and Administrators

Scope of Work

Dr. Elyse Hambacher will work as principal investigator on a project funded by the National Academy of Education/Spencer Foundation. The proposed project is a critical case study that seeks to understand how justice-oriented white teachers and administrators in one predominantly White school district engages with concepts of race, anti-racism, and whiteness. The study employs qualitative research methods including interviews, observations, and an analysis of documents. Currently, the research team is in the process of analyzing data and manuscript preparation.
