

Overview

This project seeks to enhance elementary math instruction by developing and refining AI-powered tools that support teachers in analyzing and utilizing student problem-solving strategies. These tools will leverage semi-supervised clustering algorithms to process data from the Teachley and ASSISTments platforms, enabling teachers to orchestrate meaningful math discussions. The University of Florida (UF) team will focus on algorithm development and deployment, data analysis, and dissemination.