

Modern Statistical Methods for Professional Ice Hockey

The goals of the project are threefold:

1. Development of methods for collection and processing of new sources of observational and experimental data from physiological and visual sources.
2. Use of hierarchical statistical models for isolating individual and subgroup contributions to group performance measures.
3. Education of methods and models to personnel in the Minnesota Wild organization.