

Guided Pathways for Student Success at Four-Year Institutions

The Institute of Higher Education (IHE) at the University of Florida will lead a team of researchers and four-year institutional stakeholders to provide data-driven recommendations to the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation regarding its ongoing efforts to support the use of guided pathways as an evidence-based framework that supports student success and institutional transformation. For this project, the IHE-led team will incorporate the four-year institutional perspective within the Pathways Collaborative (PC) already established by the Gates Foundation and identify additional PC partners with four-year expertise to supplement and enhance PC efforts to transform institutional practices in order to improve student success initiatives at four-year institutions.
