We believe that passionate individuals can inspire local and global change! We, Projects for Haiti (P4H), are a Gainesville- based 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. Our mission is to partner with Haitians educationally and vocationally while collaborating with the international community to advocate for global sustainable practices. We are thrilled to announce that on November 14, 2015 we will be hosting the 2015 Florida Connected Conference at 8am at The University of Florida Straughn Center. We are anticipating 300 educators from around the state of Florida to come together in the name of global education and global citizenry. In partnership with several University of Florida area studies centers, we are confident that this conference will inspire educators to create global citizens in their classrooms. In collaboration with the University of Florida Centers for Latin American, African, and the College of Education , we hope to use the stories and passions of prominent international educational leaders to raise global awareness of global issues across world regions in our community. This event will feature 6 dynamic speakers and various workshop leaders that will seek to inspire further international partnerships among educators and encourage global citizenry in Florida classrooms. Please visit http:// florida connected.wordpress.com to find out more information about this incredible opportunity. To RSVP please fill out the short form at <http://tinyurl.com/floridaconnected> . Due to space restrictions, we can only accept the first 300 Educators who register, so please register early!
