

SAGE Presents “From Admission to Quals: Navigating the PhD”

Wondering what the next few years of your graduate experience will look like? Curious about the doctoral experience? Have some thoughts on your own experience that you'd care to share?

Then join us for a panel discussion featuring current and former doctoral students from the College of Education as they talk about their experiences from admission to the PhD program through qualifying exams. Panel discussants will share information about getting involved in research projects, choosing a committee, surviving the qualifying exam experience, and tips and tricks they've learned along the way to navigate the sometimes mysterious maze of graduate studies. A question and answer session will follow.

Featured Panelists:

Ms. Shelly Curcio, Doctoral student in Curriculum, Teaching, and Teacher Education

Dr. Vivian Gonsalves, PhD in Special Education

Ms. Natalie King, Doctoral candidate in Science Education

Mr. Mario Worlds, Doctoral student in Language Arts, Reading, and Children's Literature

Wednesday, Sept. 9, 2015, 10:00am-11:00am
Terrace Room, Norman Hall