

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

2018 College of Education Research Symposium

"A Critical Collaboration in 'Times of Challenge and Controversy'"

Norman Hall, April 5th, 2018

"The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort and convenience, but where he stands at times of challenge and controversy."

– Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

All undergraduate students, graduate students, faculty, and practitioners in the field of education are invited to submit a proposal to the University of Florida's third annual College of Education Research Symposium, sponsored by the Education College Council (ECC) and Student Alliance of Graduates in Education (SAGE).

During this 50th anniversary year of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., our theme, "A Critical Collaboration in 'Times of Challenge and Controversy'", serves as both a tribute and a call to action. The symposium intends to facilitate cross-disciplinary dialogue and, to that end, we hope this annual event will draw interest across all three schools within the college.

As in previous years, we understand the term "research" broadly and welcome submissions of original social science research, historical inquiry, practitioner inquiry, and other research projects that further our knowledge and understanding of education in a variety of settings, both formal and informal. Faculty members who have worked with undergraduate and graduate students and intern/mentor teacher pairs who have engaged in practitioner inquiry are especially encouraged to submit.

Proposal Formats and Instructions

Paper Presentations

This presentation format provides an opportunity to present an abbreviated version of a scholarly paper. Proposals are due by March 1st and complete papers are due by March 22nd for review. In addition, papers will be judged against other submissions as part of a paper competition and award money will be presented for the highest scoring paper at the conclusion of the Symposium. See link below for additional formatting and submission instructions.

Roundtable Presentations

This format will provide an opportunity to present to a smaller group and may include research that is "in progress". This is an opportunity to receive feedback on a current project and dialogue with others about similar research interests. See link below for additional formatting and submission instructions.

Poster Presentations

As part of a poster session, this presentation format provides experience presenting to and interacting with others about your research. Poster formats may vary but should summarize your research in a concise and attractive manner. Posters will be judged during the session and both Undergraduate and Graduate level award money will be presented the night of the Symposium. See link below for additional formatting and submission instructions.

All proposals are due March 1, 2018 by 11:59 p.m.
